Harper has been a singer-songwriter in the Seattle music scene since the mid-90's. It was three years ago when Harper found her creative home with a handful of musicians and formed a powerful, familial band. Ever since, she has sought to share that sense of welcoming sonic space with Emerald City audiences whenever she and her musical comrades, The Harper Conspiracy, plug in to play their signature brand of indie rock.

With a captivating four-song EP already to their credit, The Harper Conspiracy have honed their lively sound. The vocal play between the two-female fronted four piece engages the audience as they create a sound unique in the Seattle music scene. In March 2019, the band participated in the beloved Earwig Sessions, Volume I at the namesake studios, and released two new videos. In 2019 the group also hosted and performed at many venues and shared the stage with fabulous local and touring musical talents, culminating in a full-length album that will make its debut spring of 2020. Stay tuned!
